ABOUT THE A-GAME

The A-GAME began as a federal dissemination grant to create tools for authorizing and reviewing alternative education campuses. Initially, 11 authorizers joined forces to create the National Authorizer Leadership Team. Today, the A-GAME is a growing community of over 75 authorizers, who believe better outcomes for all students requires better and more equitable authorizing practices. Our community discussions and services center around Responsive Goals that Assess - Global access, Academics, Mission, and Equity, with a special emphasis on learning loss and social-emotional development.

“A-GAME is some of the best professional development I’ve had over the past 2-3 years. It’s extremely relevant to my work and thought-provoking; it’s been a wonderful time to network with some really thoughtful leaders...refreshing personally as well as professionally.”
